Secretary

Wendy Spicher

From the Desk of the Secretary

The past several months have been a whirlwind of activities as I've gotten acclimated to this new and exciting position. Fortunately, I've been with the Pennsylvania Department of Banking and Securities (DoBS) since 2006, so I have a solid understanding of the inner workings of our organization along with a great team to provide support whenever needed.

While 2023 saw several changes such as a new administration in addition to routine changes in staff due to hirings and retirements, it occurred to me that there are many new faces on our team that you might not know. In 2024, we will spotlight each area of our organization and the people who are responsible for the work we do.

What do we do?

Simply put, the department's mission is to regulate financial services and work to ensure consumers and businesses are well-informed about the marketplace. Check out the sidebar on this page for more details.

Our Team

I would like to acknowledge the incredible dedication and extraordinary employees of DoBS who have always performed with integrity. We may be one of the smaller commonwealth agencies, but our team is mighty!

DoBS is made up of approximately 170 employees who primarily work in four main areas, each overseen by a Deputy Secretary: Depository Institutions, Non-Depository Institutions, Securities, and Administration. We also have several staff that cover communications, legal, legislative and policy for the entire agency, as well as the members of the Banking and Securities Commission (read more about the commission on p. 5). All together, we are deeply committed to the department's mission and to protecting the citizens of this commonwealth, so make sure you read future issues to get to know us even better!

We have high standards

It's important to note that the department is nationally accredited by the Conference of State Bank Supervisors (CSBS), the National Association of State Credit Union Supervisors (NASCUS), and the American Association of Residential Mortgage Regulators (AARMR). Accreditation provides independent assurances that the work we do meets the highest standards among state regulators. Learn more about what DoBS does regarding accreditation on p. 3.

Encouraging Careers in our Industry

There are a wide variety of rewarding career opportunities in the financial services industry. For undergraduate students, we encourage participation in the national CSBS Community Bank Case Study Competition where a number of Pennsylvania colleges and universities have earned top rankings over the years (learn more about the competition on p. 4). The competition allows students to gain valuable first-hand knowledge of the banking industry.

DoBS is always looking for qualified professionals to join our team, so be sure to check out our Careers webpage for details.

Upholding High Standards Through Accreditation

First there's the rigorous preparation for the initial accreditation. Then there's annual online reviews and updates. Then every few years there's an intensive re-accreditation. While this explanation is overly simplified, most people who have been through accreditation agree that it's a challenging yet affirming process. It's also an achievement – when awarded – that is earned from hard work and high-standards.

The Pennsylvania Department of Banking and Securities (DoBS) is currently accredited by the Conference of State Bank Supervisors (CSBS), the National Association of State Credit Union Supervisors (NASCUS), and the American Association of Residential Mortgage Regulators (AARMR). In 2024, DoBS will undergo the five-year reaccreditation of its policies, procedures, and operations to ensure that the work we do meets the highest standards among state regulators.

Stacey Cameron is the Deputy Secretary for Depository Institutions at DoBS where she oversees the chartering, regulation, supervision, and examination of Pennsylvania state-chartered banks, credit unions, and non-depository trust companies. She has also been tasked with leading the reaccreditation effort for DoBS in 2024.

"While DoBS is primarily a financial regulatory agency – meaning we regulate various financial services entities across the Commonwealth – we strongly believe in maintaining our own high comprehensive organization and performance standards based on best practices recognized by achieving accreditation through CSBS, NASCUS and AARMR," said Cameron. "In our industry, accreditation allows state financial regulation to be strengthened by requiring agencies to meet a shared set of standards."

FUN FACTS

- In 1986, DoBS was the 3rd state to be accredited by CSBS. We are now 1 of 47 accredited states.
- In 2001, DoBS was the 22nd state to be accredited by NASCUS. We are now 1 of 29 accredited states.
- In 2009, DoBS was the 2nd state to be accredited by AARMR. We are now 1 of 30 accredited states.

For DoBS, the process involves completing an in-depth questionnaire evaluating department operations that can take several months to complete and involves the assistance of a cross-section of DoBS staff. In addition, a team from each of the accrediting agencies will review and analyze the information submitted and conduct on-site interviews to assess and validate the agencies programs and processes. The evaluations dive into specific operational program areas including agency administration and finance, personnel and training, examination, supervision and legislative powers related to the supervision and regulation of banks, credit unions, non-depository trust companies, and mortgage licensees. Final conclusions will be provided, along with any recommendations, at the end of their visit.

Planning for our five-year reaccreditation began in the 4th quarter 2023, and we expect to conclude the process later this year.

"At DoBS, accreditation is truly a team effort and one that we take pride in earning," added Cameron.

2024 Community Bank Case Study Competition Now Open

Spread the Word! The 2024 Annual Community Bank Case Study Competition, sponsored by the Conference of State Bank Supervisors (CSBS), has officially opened.

This is the 10th year for the competition, which is open to undergraduate students in all fields of study as an opportunity to gain valuable first-hand knowledge of the banking industry. Under the guidance of a school faculty member, student teams will partner with local community banks to conduct original case studies that include a financial analysis of the bank, a review of how the bank responded to several high-profile failures in the spring of 2023, and the bank’s approach to social media.

Faculty interested in the program can submit a statement of interest through February 5, 2024.

Scholarship prizes are awarded to students and faculty advisors for the top three teams. Pennsylvania colleges and universities have become frequent competitors and led the nation in the number of participating teams for many years.
