“By failing to prepare, you are preparing to fail.”

- Ben Franklin

Homebuyers are protected by laws, including the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, the Fair Housing Act, the Fair Credit Reporting Act, the Home Ownership and Equity Protection Act, and the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act.

These laws prohibit discrimination and require that consumers receive certain disclosures about their loan and settlement services.

If you believe your lender has violated the law or is engaging in unfair or deceptive practices, contact the PA Department of Banking and Securities, Office of Attorney General, or the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau.

PA Department of Banking and Securities
1.800.PA.BANKS (800.722.2657)
dobs.pa.gov

PA Office of Attorney General
1.800.441.2555
attorneygeneral.gov

US Consumer Financial Protection Bureau
1.855.411.2372
consumerfinance.gov

If you have questions or concerns about any of the information contained in this brochure, the Pennsylvania Department of Banking and Securities trained, professional staff may be able to answer your questions. You may reach one of our Consumer Services Specialists at 1.800.PA.BANKS (800.722.2657). The phone call is free and so are our services.
Most lenders will not finance the full purchase price of a home and will require a buyer to make a downpayment, often as much as 20 percent of the purchase price. You may want to see if you qualify for various government programs (Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Affairs) which may not require as much of a down payment.

Whether it is brand new or a fixer-upper, you will never forget your first home. First-time homebuyers face many choices - choices that will affect your personal and financial well-being for years to come.

Check Your Credit

Lenders use a number of factors to evaluate you as a borrower, including your income, employment, and credit history.

Before you apply for a loan, take the time to review your credit report and correct any mistakes. Credit reports are available from three different companies (Equifax, Experian and TransUnion) for free at annualcreditreport.com or 1.877.322.8228.

Your credit report is used to calculate your credit score – a number that measures your creditworthiness. The higher your score, the better your chances of getting a loan with a competitive rate and terms.

Consider Pre-Approval

Having a loan pre-approval can help you in several ways. It will give you an idea of how much money may be available to you, which will determine which houses you can afford. A pre-approval also lets sellers and real estate agents know that your offer is valid.

Shop around for the best rate: compare offers from a variety of lenders, such as banks, credit unions and mortgage companies, to make sure you are getting a competitive deal. Beware of lenders who make big promises or who will not put things in writing, and make sure your lender is licensed by the PA Department of Banking and Securities.

A pre-approval does not guarantee you will get the loan. It is simply an estimate of the amount of the loan for which you may qualify. There is a chance you could be turned down or receive a different amount.

Do Your Homework

Many community organizations offer classes and advice for first-time buyers. The PA Housing Finance Agency and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development maintain lists of approved housing counselors.

Information on approved housing counselors in your area:

Pennsylvania Housing Finance Agency
1.800.822.1174 | phta.org

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development
1.800.569.4287 | hud.gov

Federal government home buyers assistance programs

U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs benefits.va.gov/homeloans

Federal Housing Administration
hud.gov

Tax and Insurance Costs

Consider not only the amount of a mortgage, but also consider the property tax and insurance costs. Borrowers should find out if these costs are included in mortgage loan payments. As a home owner, you will also be responsible for other costs, including utilities (i.e., water and electricity) and possibly sewer and trash removal. You may also have to consider home maintenance and repair costs.

Save for a Downpayment

Most lenders will not finance the full purchase price of a home and will require a buyer to make a downpayment, often as much as 20 percent of the purchase price. You may want to see if you qualify for various government programs (Federal Housing Administration or Veterans Affairs) which may not require as much of a down payment.

Working With Agents

Many homebuyers incorrectly assume that real estate agents are working for them. In most cases, the real estate agent is working to get the best price for the seller and not the lowest price for you.

One way to protect yourself is to hire your own real estate agent, known as a buyer’s agent. Ideally, a buyer’s agent is independent and does not work for the same company as the seller’s agent.

Inspect Before You Buy

Would you buy a car without taking a test drive? Of course not! The same goes for buying a home. A home inspector checks the physical structure and systems of a home for problems. If repairs are needed, they should be made before you purchase the home, or you could ask to have the repair costs deducted from the house price.

It is important that you – not the seller or the real estate agent – hire the home inspector. You should also choose a repair contractor if needed and inspect the finished work.

Prepare for Closing

Closing, also known as settlement, is the transfer of ownership from the seller to the buyer. Ask the lender and real estate agent ahead of time for copies of the documents you will need to sign. Read them carefully to make sure you are getting the rate and terms you were promised. You should also have a professional such as an attorney, housing counselor or financial advisor read over your documents.